THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

The Democratic party is building magnificent castles in the air in the anticipation of its return to power in the election of 1872. It is a remarkable organization. The Confederate soldiers, the Copperheads, the pro-slavery men, the ballot-stuffers, gamblers and thieves some representatives of a foreign banker displaying the badge of his employer, make up its membership. Charlemagne George, of Cincinnati, Miles McQuade of St. Louis, John Early, of Virginia, Bill Allison Sweeney of Alabama, Elliot Pomeroy, Jim Fox, Judge Rousset, Belmont, Barlow, Ingalls, and a majority of the San Domingo trip are representative men of the party. In the matter of politics the composition is not less incongruous. The men who are the members of the party in Congress are Randall, the Pennsylvania protectionist, and Brooks, the New York free-trader; while the old Whigs, Know Nothings, Andy Johnson adherents, and Cold Water men are the majority. In the Senate there are very few, and yet on occasion they have they been selected, that a majority of that few are the champions of a grinding protective tariff, the special defenders of the rum, lum, and all monopolies.

The Democratic party present nothing to recommend themselves to public favor, that they did not present in 1864, and again in 1868. They have had no change of men, and have proposed no change of policy. In 1864, they proposed that the war cease at once, and that it should be dropped. In 1868, they declared for acquiescence, that the war should be ceased to overthrow the reconstruction policy of Congress. In 1872, it is like hankering after what were the abolition of slavery, and the civil and political equality of all citizens, regardless of color, which they denounced. The Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments must be treated as null and void. They have no policy with regard to taxation or finance. In short, the Democratic party has neither principles nor leaders; and it seems almost a misnomer, except through some blunder on the part of the Republicans.

The Democratic party contains within its organization almost every element which is dangerous to public liberty and to national safety. How it would perish the nation, it is easy to see by the condition of the State and city of New York—the only part of the country in which it has organization, and supreme power. The government of New York is a specimen of the government which the Democratic party proposes to give to the nation. It is a government of plunder—to rob the general public to feed and clothe an army of rum-shops and bullies, who neither labor nor possess, but are maintained at the public expense. We justly complain in this country of the expense of keeping an army, private to a standing army, but the standing army of ruffians, ballot-stuffers, thieves, and assassins, kept upon liberal pay by the Democratic party in the city of New York, costs the public five dollars for one dollar the army which would be necessary to maintain a regular army of the same number of men. At present this Democratic government is confined to that city, but there is not a ping-pong in New York, nor in any other part of the country, that will be in no distant future, if the Democratic party shall be entrusted with the power of the Treasury of the United States shall be transferred to the archives of Tammany Hall, and the spoil of the nation be distributed among the Copperheads.

It is a significant fact that the first measures in the country of a dishonest, predatory, shameless, bleeding judiciary was created by the Democratic party in the only portion of the country subject to its rule.

There are some attached to the Republican party, and claiming to be leaders in it, who are of no profit to the party, nor any advantage to the country. But the vicious elements which are united in the Democratic party are different. All of the famous gold party are different, all of the famous peace party of 1864 are there, and by the Judas to overthrow every barrier which stands between power, office, notoriety or life and property, and the absolute sway of the Broker mob. There is no reason or restraint in that party. No man is quoted, or is his personal or political antecedents. Nothing that he may say or do can injure or impair his standing. The highest principles are not regarded. He can vote any way he pleases. He can vote to repudiate the debt, and pay it in greenbacks, like Morgan; or he can vote to make greenbacks payable in gold, like Brooks. He can vote to repeal the tax on beer, like Cox, or to make it 100 per cent, like Bell. He can spout free-protection for free trade, like Sam Randall; he can vote for revenue, or vote to repeal all revenue. He can vote to compel the states to work the navigation rights, the railroad speculators may have their bill for a land distribution, or the hotels can vote for a bill to cut the throats of another class. Upon no question of general political or upon any of its details, is any Democrat required to have any fixed opinion, except, perhaps, that he "nigger" shall vote. It is a party of every element of discord and disorder, and of every form of dishonesty and robbery and spoliation.

In the coming contest of 1872, the Democratic party have nothing with the present. In 1868, and in the Cincinnati platform, and by the action of Democratic meetings, it had some hope of success. But, in 1872, they have not the hope that they had of the fight over again, upon what they have been defeated, outside of New York city, namely, since 1868. They might have made a respectable showing, but the party never of temerity, or rather, when it votes at all, votes under some form of Lobby and Blackleg. It will have to fetch the fight once more with no other battle-cry than "to-pitch, the niggers" (?) with New York and Tammany defeated in 1868, or 1872, unless it shall be satisfied to wait for the next eighteen months by the Republican party, which we conceive to be quite improbable.

NEW HOTEL AT RIVERSIDE.

An elegantly appointed Hotel from designs prepared by W. L. B. JENNEY, Esq., is in progress of construction at Riverside, to be completed on or before July 1. It is so PLACED, that—with the RESERVOIR, PARK, and driving purposes, and the PAVILION, for billiards and lounging, both 300 feet removed from this main building, though connected by a covered veranda—it will afford families the quiet and comfort so much desired, and nowhere else attainable.

The rooms are all large, light, and well ventilated; 12 trains each way per day between Chicago and Riverside; commutation, $20 per quarter, and family tickets at 14c. per ride; 11 miles of splendid drives; good facilities for boating, fishing, billiards, &c., affording business men recreation in the society of their families without interfering with business.

Rooms for the season may now be engaged from the plans, which may be seen at my office, 23 Washington-st. Occupation to be given July 1 next.

WHITE STOCKINGS VS. OLYMPICS.

The White Stockings and Olympics of Washington met for the first time this season at the Union Base-Ball Grounds, yesterday, in contest the best game of baseball playing which has taken place in this city since the Atlantics and Eckfords of Brooklyn, and after the fourth game of the series between the Mutuals and Athletics, of Brooklyn, which occurred a few days since. The Olympics have been regarded as the champions of the Union, and, having defeated the Atlantics, in Brooklyn, by the Eckfords, and, having defeated the Mutuals in their own, in the White Stockings have been looked upon as the champions of the West, and, after their defeat by the Eckfords, on Saturday, the 6th, on the ground of the Chicago Club, it was only from hopeful of success, and, consequently, promised to make the game a sharp and interesting one.

THE ATTENDANCE

was very large, some 10,000 persons being estimated by the reporters of the various papers, but it could not be ascertained with any certainty, as the grounds were so large that a person could easily be lost in the crowd, and, consequently, not be counted. The grounds were well adapted for the game, and, with the exception of a few boards, were in good condition. The appeared in excellent half-good condition, and, with the exception of Mr. Foley, who was not in his place, the nine was the same that played the game with the Eckfords, and, consequently, there was no change in the order of the batting. The Olympics were in good condition, and, with the exception of Mr. Wood, who was not in his place, the nine was the same that played the game with the Atlantics, and, consequently, there was no change in the order of the batting.
